II. NH Coastal Adaptation Workgroup (CAW), Path to Resilience project, needs and opportunities assessment

Independent Planning Consultant Liz Durfee said she has been contracted by the NH Coastal Adaptation Workgroup to work on a project with a number of partners to conduct a needs and opportunities assessment in five upper watershed communities of the Piscataqua River watershed. Ms. Durfee said she has met with New Durham, Somersworth, Barrington, and Kingston to discuss interests and concerns related to hazards and to collect information from the Board about potential opportunities.

Conversation ensued regarding some of the questions the NH Coastal Adaptation Workgroup had prepared.

Ms. Durfee said she will take all the information she received from the five communities, compile it into a report and share it with the project team and with the Coastal Adaptations Workgroup. She said it will be used to develop future programming for the Coastal Adaptations Workgroup which is comprised of a number of organizations and municipalities in the coastal area around Great Bay. Ms. Durfee said it's an informational sharing group that comes together to learn about different topics and look for funding from outside sources to implement projects with the overall goal is to start bringing more funding and experience to the upper watershed communities.
